THE THEATRE

Genesta Theatre
Fania the dancing girl, known as "the pearl of paradise" of the Ali Baba Cafe in Mazab, was a voluptuous Hour—and fascinating—as she wiggled her lithe and sinuous body in rhythmic sway to the tinkling of the oriental music in the "All Baba Shimmy-Shiver," in the H. B. Warner production, "The Man Who Turned White."
Wine-bibbers of the Soudan, rouses who were at home in every doubtful cafe from Paris to Bagdad, fell under her magic spell.
Fania didn't wear much in the way of costume. In fact, a gorgeous necklace, long ear-pennets and shining breast shields, were the sum and substance of her wardrobe. But how Fania could wiggle! Every muscle twitched and rippled over her body in synchrony with the throbbing pulse of the wild oriental "Can-Can."
Was Fania a wanton? By no means. Her heart belonged only to one—Captain Rand, the dashing officer of the foreign legion—and for him she would die, if necessary. And if some other Hour became too familiar with the Captain, she, too, would die, and the Captain also, for Fania loved in a fierce and primitive way.
"The Man Who Turned White," the first in a series of Superior Pictures starring H. B. Warner, the famous English actor, and distributed by Exhibitors Mutual, is a tense and colorful drama of the great Sahara desert, replete with oriental glamour and thrilling episodes. To be presented at the Genesta Theatre Sunday, October 26th.

The Buick Built Radiator

The design of the Buick radiator is such that it not only affords the maximum of cooling space to the water, but is the simplest, cheapest and quickest radiator to repair in case of accident

A small leak may be plugged up temporarily with anything that is convenient until the proper time comes to remove the radiator for repair.

If the leak is a large one, the affected area may be cut out entirely and a new repair section fitted into place in such a manner as to avoid detection, without interfering in any way with the circulation or cooling properties. This is distinctly a Buick feature.

As will be seen from the sectional photograph shown, this leaves all of the vertical tubes in exactly the same condition as they were before the section was put in, and does away entirely with an unsightly repair job, reduced circulation space or the cost of a new radiator.
